special guests

Justin Craig

Justin is a classical and jazz guitarist residing in Blacksburg, Virginia. He and his wife Marci are registered Suzuki guitar instructors at the Renaissance Music Academy, and he divides his time between teaching, performing, arranging and teaching courses.

Stevie Barr and the Blue 58 Band

Stevie has traveled the world playing his lively bluegrass music for audiences that have included the Queen of England and the President of the United States. He formed the bluegrass group No Speed Limit with Jacob Eller on bass and vocalist Amber Collins, who were eventually joined by Josh Pickett on guitar and Ryan Blevins on mandolin.

Mediocre Bad Guys

Started in 2005 by a group of music buffs in Mount Airy, North Carolina, Mediocre Bad Guys has delighted audiences at premier nightclubs, festivals, and private parties with their mix of beloved cover songs and original recordings.

Jeanette Williams

Since her debut solo release in 1994, Jeanette Williams has quietly become one of the most successful and celebrated women in bluegrass music. Her list of awards, accolades, and career highlights continues to grow, as does her adoring fan base.

Michael "Thunder Dancer Sees the Ground" Cranford and Jeannie "E Nah Dah" Cranford

Tribal members of the Cherokee Nation, the Cranfords are traditional dancers who frequently perform at powwows and numerous events from Maryland to Florida. They also give presentations and demonstrations about their Native American culture at schools in NC, VA and SC.
